Outline/Agenda for Examiner Interview

1. Summary of applicant's view of invention
2. Summary of applicant's view of distinguishing elements of invention over prior art
  - a. Musgrove/Smartshop.com – automated content gathering without user interaction (e.g., data gathering and viewing of data occurring at different point in time)
3. Discussion re 35 USC 101 – Prior Office Action rejected claims 20, 21, 23, and 24 as not producing a tangible result.
  - a. Final Office Action indicated claims are directed to energy, a non-statutory class. This appears to be the first assertion of this grounds of rejection, and should therefore not be final.
  - b. There is no paragraph 0081
  - c. There is nothing in paragraph 0024 which implies that the storage medium is signals per se.
  - d. Would an amendment limiting these claims to a physical storage medium fully address the Examiner's concerns? E.g., "A physical computer readable storage medium..."
4. Exploration of options for applicant at this point, in terms of examiner's view of claims and art
  - a. RCE with amended claims – what amendments might be effective yet not overly restrictive?
  - b. Appeal?

Examiner Interview Summary

Sir:

Pursuant to the requirements of 37 CFR 1.133(b), applicant hereby submits the following summary of an interview between Wilfred Lam, Jonathan Small, and the Examiner in the subject application held on September 4, 2007. An Applicant Initiated Interview Request Form (PTOL 413A) is submitted herewith pursuant to MPEP 7.13.04, although this form was not used to initiate the interview in this case.

BACKGROUND

Claims 1-9, 11, 20-21, 23-24, and 26-33 are pending in the present application. All claims of the present application were finally rejected in the Office Action mailed June 28, 2007. A telephone interview was conducted on September 4, 2007, between the Examiner, the undersigned, and Jonathan Small, attorneys for applicant. The following is a summary of the interview, as required by 37 CFR 1.133(b).

INTERVIEW SUMMARY

A. Brief description of the nature of any exhibit shown or any demonstration conducted

No exhibits were shown nor demonstrations made.

B. Identification of the claims discussed

Claims 1 and 20 were specifically discussed. The remainder of the claims were discussed in general terms

C. Identification of specific prior art discussed

The Musgrove reference (USP 6,535,880) and the Smartshop.com website cited therein were discussed.

D. Identification of the principal proposed amendments of a substantive nature discussed

The examiner suggested amending claim 20 to include the limitation "computer storage medium" in order to overcome the rejection of that claim under 35 USC 101. The undersigned proposed "physical storage medium" as an alternative. It appeared that the Examiner was in agreement with this alternative.

E. General thrust of the principal arguments of the applicant and the examiner

The undersigned argued first that the general nature of the subject invention and the disclosure by Musgrove are fundamentally different. Whereas the present invention is concerned with acquiring product data from a user's interaction with that data (i.e., from a user's interaction with a product web page), Musgrove is concerned with aggregating together many web product pages so that a user need only go to one site to find a wide array of pages for that product. Where the primary objective of the present invention is to capture user interaction with different web pages, the primary objective of Musgrove is to reduce the number of different pages with which the user actually must interact.

The undersigned further argued that this is borne out by the language of the claims, and in particular claim 1. The undersigned used Fig. 1 of the Musgrove reference to illustrate the difference. It was explained that if the first location of claim 1 corresponds to the Shopping Server 20 of Musgrove, the second location of claim 1 corresponds to the Client 12 of Musgrove, and the third location corresponds to any of the Merchant Servers 40 of Musgrove, according to claim 1, product information from interactions between second and third locations being stored in the first location (claim 1) means that Musgrove would have to teach storing in Shopping Server 20 product information from interactions between client 12 and Merchant Servers 40. However, the undersigned argued that this is not what Musgrove teaches. Rather, Musgrove teaches automated interactions between Shopping Server 20 and Merchant Server 40 in order to populate Shopping Server 20, and client-side interactions limited to interactions with Shopping Server 20 (i.e., no product information from interactions between Client 12 and Merchant Servers 40). Indeed, this is the very type of interaction from which Musgrove is attempting to free the user.

Finally, claim 20 (and its dependent claims) were discussed in light of their rejection under 35 USC 101. Applicant suggested that the grounds for rejection as being directed to a non-statutory class was first made in the Final Office Action mailed June 28, 2007, the prior rejections under 35 USC 101 being directed to lack of tangible result. As applicant was not provided an opportunity to previously respond to this ground of rejection, it was asserted that the final rejection was premature. In response, the Examiner indicated that if claim 20 was amended in a request for reconsideration to read "computer storage medium" or alternatively "physical storage medium", the amendment would be entered and the finality withdrawn.

F. General indication of any other pertinent matters discussed

No other matters were discussed.

G. General results or outcome of the interview

The Examiner's further consider Applicant's arguments by way of a Request for Reconsideration. The Examiner will enter an amendment of claim 20 to include the limitations "computer storage medium" or alternatively "physical storage medium", and withdraw the final rejection at least as to claim 20 and its dependent claims in light of 35 USC 101.

If the Examiner believes that a telephone conference would expedite prosecution and allowance of this application, please telephone the undersigned at 650-969-8300.

Respectfully submitted,
